Supplementary Figure 1

TGFβ-induced IOP elevations are mediated by RhoA in the early but not the late fibrotic phase of open angle glaucoma

Lisa J Hill, PhD<sup>a,1,*</sup>, Ben Mead, PhD<sup>b,1</sup>, Chloe Thomas, BMedSc<sup>a</sup>, Simon Foale BMedSc<sup>a</sup>, Elena Feinstein, PhD<sup>c</sup>, Martin Berry, DPhil<sup>a</sup>, Richard J Blanch, PhD<sup>a</sup>, Zubair Ahmed, PhD<sup>a,2</sup> and Ann Logan, PhD<sup>a,2</sup>

<sup>a</sup>Neuroscience and Ophthalmology Research Group, Institute of Inflammation and Ageing, University of Birmingham, Birmingham, B15 2TT, United Kingdom

<sup>b</sup>Section of Retinal Ganglion Cell Biology, Laboratory of Retinal Cell and Molecular Biology, National Eye Institute, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland, 20892, USA

<sup>c</sup>Research Division, Quark Pharmaceuticals, Ness Ziona, Israel

<sup>1</sup>Contributed equally and are joint first authors

<sup>2</sup>Joint senior authors

*Corresponding author: Lisa Hill, Neuroscience and Ophthalmology Research Group, Institute of Inflammation and Ageing, University of Birmingham, B15 2TT, United Kingdom. Tel: +44(0) 121 414 8859. Email address: L.J.Hill@bham.ac.uk

